What is the governments roll in the development of written language?

Latin came to be used in government and education in all the Roman provinces.

The latin alphabet came from the one used by the etruscans.

English is partly based on Latin.

In adition the Latin alphabet is used to write in English and many other languages into wet clay somewhere between 5,000 and 6,000 years ago.

The Sumerians used a stick whose cross section had either three or four sides to write their cuneiform letters on moist clay tablets that were later baked.
